But let no woman despair of relief from this torture. That famous tonic reconstructor of diseased or disordered female organism,

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

has cured more than one million American Women, and it will cure you. When monthly periods are painful or irregular, when backaches and headaches drive out all ambition, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will bring back health, strength, and happiness.

It Gave Me New Life and Vigor

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last spring, while we were moving, I did considerable more work than my strength permitted, and, having mental trouble at the same time, my health broke down completely and I found myself unable to rest or eat. My nervous system became shattered and I was pale and emaciated and had to take to my bed. My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and, although I had no faith in patent medicines, I was so miserable that I would take anything for relief. I found that it made a complete change for the better, inducing appetite and restful sleep and imparting new life and vigor to my entire system. I gained nearly fourteen pounds, my complexion looked fresh and clear, and my best friends were surprised and pleased at the change and could hardly credit the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had accomplished it.

A VICTORY FOR MAYOR WEAVER.

Trial of John W. Hill of Filtration Bureau Postponed.

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—The trial of John W. Hill, former chief of the filtration bureau, who is charged with forgery and falsifying the records of his bureau, which was to have begun yesterday, was postponed until after the November election. Judge McMichael said that so much publicity had been given to the case that he thought it unfair to call it at this time. The postponement is regarded as a victory for Mayor Weaver and his private counsel, former Judge Gordon, who have urged that the case ought not to come to trial in the absence of District Attorney Bell, who was seriously hurt by the fall of an elevator two months ago, and who is now recuperating.

Curtis Baldwin, of Williston, celebrated his 92nd birthday anniversary October 7.

MOVING MORMON MONUMENT.

Twenty-Two Horses Made Slow Progress in Drawing the Base.

South Royalton, Oct. 18.—The base of the monument to be erected by the Mormons in memory of Joseph Smith, the founder of the sect, at his birthplace in this town, arrived Saturday at Royalton in two pieces, twelve feet square. They were brought on two cars from Barre. It took half a day to reload the base on the wagon and to move it to Dairy hill.

The wagon weighs ten and a half tons, has wheels 18 inches wide, and 22 horses were attached, but they failed to move it more than a few yards until yesterday, when a new start was made with pulley blocks, and was taken to the lower end of the village, at the rate of less than half a mile per day.

M'CURDY COMPLAINS

President of Equitable Life Says It Is An Inquisition.

NOT AN INVESTIGATION

Makes the Significant Statement That the Legislatures Have to Be Watched — Yesterday's Session.

New York, Oct. 18.—President Richard A. M'Curdy was the leading witness before the legislative insurance committee at the resumption of its hearing yesterday morning. The session was marked by several warm passages-at-arms with Attorney C. E. Hughes for the investigators, which showed a firm determination of the officials to get at "bottom facts."

It was developed that the Mutual Life company paid house rent in Albany for A. C. Fields, an employee, during the legislative session. Mr. M'Curdy testified that Fields was in Albany "on legislative matters."

Mr. M'Curdy said he did not know Andrew Hamilton of Albany, and was surprised to learn that the Mutual Life company had paid money to him.

Mr. M'Curdy complained that this investigation was going outside of what was contemplated when the committee was appointed at the legislature. He said he understood this was to be an examination of insurance methods, not an inquisition. Mr. Hughes replied that it was indeed an inquisition.

Mr. M'Curdy said:

"I want to make one general remark, if you will allow me, Mr. Hughes, and that is, when you come to the calculation of dividends and so on you have got the wrong witness. You ought, in fairness to me and in fairness to the company—you ought to call the actuary of the company, who can answer readily, and whose mind is stored with all these facts and figures and arguments that you precipitate upon me, entirely unprepared, and, if I may be allowed to say so, with all due respect, I think it is taking an unfair advantage, for instance, in this very case, although I should not profess to be an expert on such questions as this, and the actuary of the company is. Take this very case. If you had been good enough to let me know the day before the nature of the investigation, or the line of the investigation you were going to follow, and what I might be expected to answer, I should have been very glad indeed to have prepared myself to answer you as well as I could; but witnesses are brought here without any knowledge of the line of examination that is to be followed, and they are taken entirely unprepared."

"Now, on the other hand, the committee will pardon me for stating my views, I think the whole course of this investigation, as it is called, is entirely outside of what was in contemplation by the legislature when the committee was constituted. It is an investigation into the conditions of life insurance, and is what is commonly called in the newspapers 'an inquisition,' and Mr. Hughes himself, with all due respect to him, I say it, has been designated chief inquisitor. Now, I say that has a medicinal sound, not entirely in accordance with the ideas of the present age, I think. To make this an inquisition, in which, as has been advertised in all the papers, witnesses are brought here and 'put upon the rack,' and all that sort of thing is, in my opinion, an entirely different conception of the functions of this examination than I believe was in contemplation by the legislature when they constituted a committee to look into the conditions of life insurance, with regard to the future legislation."

Mr. Hughes responded:

"There is indeed an inquisition, Mr. M'Curdy, in the very true sense that it is an inquiry for facts which this committee and this counsel propose to get. No, we shall have occasion to get your actuary, and it would only be proper that questions involving many mathematical calculations, and which were technical and abstruse, if any such were put, should be put to the actuary of the company; but you have been some 40 years with this company, you are the president and you get for your responsibility $150,000 a year. Now, I want to know what you know about the business of the company."

"You are trying to prove me a fool," said Mr. M'Curdy.

Probably the most interesting portion of Mr. M'Curdy's testimony was the part he gave voluntarily just before the recess. He had been asked to tell what was Mr. Field's duties. His reply was:

"Well, I can answer in this way, and it differs in no respect in any state from conditions in another. We have between 45 and 50 legislatures in session every year, and we have got between 45 and 50 superintendents of insurance, and all these men are of different degrees of intelligence, education and knowledge, in regard to the subject which they are supposed to superintend. Technically most of them are honest, a few are dishonest. I could not mention the individuals. The legislature has to be watched in every state. If it were not watched any corporation like an insurance corporation would be culpable in not protecting the interests with which they are entrusted. It is the duty of life insurance companies to see that its interests are guarded as much as the capital of a state is in any village or other town; more so, because there is greater danger."

LIFT MUCH LOOT.

Silverware, Checkbook and Five Pocket-books at Brockton.

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 18.—Silverware valued at $100, a checkbook on a New York bank, five pocketbooks and personal effects of a suspicious nature believed to belong to George W. Davis, aged 40, who is under arrest in New Hampshire for alleged breaking and entering, were found in a room at 48 Maple avenue, the home of Henry M. Thomas yesterday by Inspector Kingman.

The police believe the silverware to be some of the plunder secured by Davis in some of his breaks. Davis was arrested while trying to dispose of railroad tickets, and is charged with the break at the railroad stations at Merrimac and Thornton's Ferry, N. H. He pleaded guilty at Nashua Monday, and was held for trial.

The silverware consisted of 12 solid silver teaspoons in a case stamped "Long, Boston," six knives, nine forks and six solid silver dessert spoons marked with the initial K, two traveling cases, five pocketbooks. The checkbook and other effects were brought to the police station. The goods, judging from stamps and marks, came from Jamestown, N. Y., Holyoke, Boston and New York city. The New York bank was communicated with to learn the owner of the checkbook. An attempt will be made to ascertain the owner of the silver ware, which seems to be from the same place, the initial K appearing on nearly every piece.

Forget It.

If you have been slighted, or think so, forget it. Forget it immediately. Has some one spoken unkindly to you or about you? forget it. If you have a petty grievance against another, drop it, "seek peace and pursue it." Returning good for evil is good ointment for your soreness. Try it. Forget your losses and count your benefits. In adversity prove your manhood. Be brave. Stand full height, twelve inches to the foot. Neither murmur nor cower. Remember Job.

Life is so short to brood over misfortunes and failures. Forget them and try again. Repining always aggravates ills and irritates wounds, never lifts, never soothes, but tends to wholly unfit for better things. It is a wicked waste of much-needed energy of body, mind and spirit to keep carrying and exhibiting woes that are past. Forget them, and give all your powers to new attempts.

No man can afford to annoy himself. After rain, we need sunshine; after storm, calm; after sorrow and in the midst of it, the uplift of hope and trust; after defeat, courage, and the determination to win the next time. Lay aside every weight, and renew the race with vigor and good cheer.

FORTY HURT IN RIOT.

St. Petersburg Police Battle With Striking Printers.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 18.—In an encounter between the police and striking printers at the government bureau of printing and engraving, yesterday afternoon, 40 persons were injured, but none seriously.

The printers attempted to hold a meeting against the command of Minister of Finance Kokovsov, who requisitioned the police, and the strikers were driven from the building.

Shooting has just been reported from the Pahl cotton mill, in the eastern suburb of this city, where the strike broke out yesterday morning.

A telephone message says the disturbance is not serious.
A strike broke out in a number of factories and cotton mills of St. Petersburg yesterday. Work was suspended in the whole industrial quarter along the Neva above the city.

The railway employees are also discussing a strike. The affected factories have been supplied with military guards and Cossacks and gendarme patrols are preserving order.

The printer's strike has resulted in suspending every newspaper except the Svet and Official Messenger.
